College of Business & Law, Department of Management and Marketing

SENIOR LECTURER IN INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS

The Department of Management and Marketing at University College Cork contributes substantially to a broad range of business programmes at undergraduate, postgraduate and executive level. The Department is committed to contributing to the development of business within Ireland and to building an international research reputation. It now invites applications for a tenured, Senior Lectureship post in International Business. The Department currently teaches courses on International Business/Management at MBA and undergraduate levels and will be launching a new Masters Degree Programme in International Business in 2009. The successful applicant will play a key role in the development of International Business/Management teaching and research and will have a demonstrated record of publications in quality peer reviewed journals. Candidates with expertise in the business environments of China or the Far East or Latin America are particularly encouraged to apply.
