

From the Editor-in-Chief

This issue marks the beginning of OMJ's second year of publication. It is a heady time for those who have been involved in the development and delivery of the journal. We are excited about this milestone – and the pipeline of material we know will be coming to our readers in the future.

We appreciate those of you who have sent us your work (and those who will soon do so!), especially as OMJ is still a relatively new journal in a field with so many well-established outlets. We value your trust and are committed to providing helpful and constructive feedback on your efforts, regardless of the publication outcome.

In addition, we are particularly grateful to those individuals who served as reviewers during the period we worked to develop and then publish material last year and the year before. Our ability to provide high quality articles in each of OMJ's sections required thoughtful and developmental feedback, and the editors and I wish to thank the following individuals who served as reviewers/mentors (sometimes more than once) during 2003 and 2004:

Hamid Akbari, Elena Antonacopoulou, Steve Armstrong, Bobby Banerjee, Jean Bartunek, Regina Bento, John Bessant, Steve Betts, Jerry Biberman, Anthony Buono, Jordi Comas, Ann Cunliffe, Robert DeFillippi, Robert Dennehy, Michel Ehrenhard, Michael Elmes, Dale Fitzgibbons, Andra Gumbus, Lee Holmer, David Jacobs, Donncha Kavanagh, Tony LeTrent-Jones, Deborah Litvin, Jim Lyttle, Rob MacIntosh, Laetitia Mariaccia, Mike McCullough, Bernard McKenna, Ali Mir, Sandy Morgan, Tuomo Peltonen, Annette Risberg, Mick Rowlinson, Maureen Scully, Robin Snell, Barry Stennett, Micheal Stratton, Bellukutty Sudhakar, Kenneth Sumner, Cheryl Tromley, Dan Twomey, Joan van Aken, John Voyer, Richard Winter, Jill Woodilla, Dvora Yanow, Lyle Yorks, Rochelle Young

Although still in its infancy, OMJ has already established itself as an outlet for high quality scholarship, and as a respected and well-regarded publication. We look forward to continuing in this tradition.
